Sheriff catches fugitive

Attempted murder charge filed following fight with wife

By Rachel Parsons
The Winchester Sun

After a nearly two-day man hunt, authorities have located 41-year-old Joseph Clower and charged him with attempted murder and burglary.

Joseph Clower

Clark County Sheriff's Office deputies began searching for Clower after his wife, Melissa Clower, alleged he shot at her and assaulted her in her home at 1363 Old Ruckerville Road.

Clark County Sheriff Berl Perdue Jr. was driving down Patrick Lane, off Muddy Creek Road just outside the Winchester city limits, when he found the suspect.

"A bunch of us were out there looking for him, and I went up Patrick Lane, and he stepped out from behind a fence row, started waving his arms, and gave himself up," Perdue said.

Authorities began canvassing the area after a report from residents on Muddy Creek Road. Joseph Clower allegedly knocked on the door of a home on Muddy Creek and asked the residents if he could come in and get a drink of water.

"They said he was acting kind of funny, suspicious," Perdue said.

Clower jumped a fence behind the house, and the residents alerted police.

Earlier in the day, authorities learned Clower had been hiding out with acquaintances on Calloway Street, but he was later turned away, Perdue said.

Deputies had been looking for Clower since they received the Refinancing bonds expected to save utility $1.5 million

By Rachel Parsons
The Winchester Sun

The Winchester Municipal Utilities Commission expects to save $1.5 million over the next 20 years by refinancing a 2002 bond.

Thanks to an A rating from Standard and Poor's Rating Service and lower interest rates, WMU will retire the original bond with a traditional bank loan, and pay back the remaining balance at a much lower interest rate.

Because of the utility's good credit rating and improved financial situation, WMU was able to sell the bond to Southwest Securities with an interest rate of 3.2 percent. Five financial institutions presented bids, with Southwest Securities providing the lowest.

The utility's last credit rating — from Moody's in 2009 — was an A with a negative outlook, because of large projects planned, including the new wastewater treatment plant.

State briefs

Judge may order change of venue in retrial of murder suspect

BENTON (AP) — A western Kentucky man will face a retrial on a charge of murder starting Wednesday and a judge says he may move the proceedings to a new county if a jury can't be seated.

Marshall County Circuit Judge Dennis Foust on Thursday ordered jury selection for George Luna to start in Marshall County, but opened the possibility that it could be moved to Calloway County if finding an impartial panel proved impossible.

The state Supreme Court ordered in 2010 that Luna was entitled to a new trial.

The Paducah Sun reported that Foust will allow prosecutors to seek an enhanced penalty of life without parole for Luna if he's convicted. Prosecutors plan to argue that Debra Hendrickson's 2007 death coincided with robbery and arson.

Competency evaluation requested for man charged with killing student

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Prosecutors in Louisville have asked a judge to order a competency evaluation for a man charged with killing a Sullivan University student.

Jefferson County Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Tom Van De Rostyne told Circuit Judge Mitch Perry that the request was prompted by a review of Gregory O'Bryan's medical records and an interview with police in which O'Bryan indicated he had received psychiatric treatment.

The Courier-Journal reported it wasn't clear Thursday if Perry granted the motion. Perry told attorneys not to discuss the issue publicly.

Police said 18-year-old Andrew Compton has not been seen since Oct. 28, 2010. O'Bryan has pleaded not guilty to murder, sodomy, two counts of tampering with physical evidence and three counts of abuse of a corpse. His trial is set for November.

Man offered apology following standoff with police

FRANKFORT (AP) — A prosecutor said a Frankfort man thought he shot and killed a police officer during a 10-hour standoff and apologized without realizing that no one had been hurt.

Franklin County Commonwealth's Attorney Larry Cleveland says 59-year-old William Durham emerged from his apartment on March 29 and said "Sorry for killing the cop."

Police said Durham barricaded himself in his apartment when officers went to check on him. Police say Durham fired three shots out during the standoff.

Cleveland told The State Journal that Durham would undergo a mental evaluation.

A grand jury Wednesday charged Durham with three counts of attempted murder and two counts of wanton endangerment. Durham is in Franklin County Regional Jail on a $100,000 bond. Jail records do not list an attorney.

ECONOMY

More than 200,000 jobs created in March

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy probably generated more than 200,000 jobs in March, capping the best four months of hiring since before the recession. Economists expect that U.S. employers added 210,000 jobs last month and that the unemployment rate remained at 8.3 percent for the third straight month, according to a survey by FactSet. The Labor Department will release the March employment report at 8:30 a.m. Eastern time. If the forecast proves correct, the economy would have added an average of 236,000 jobs per month since December. That's the most for a four-month period in almost six years. It would also mark the first time the economy has created at least 200,000 jobs in four straight months since early 2000. "The labor market is steadily, if slowly, strengthening," says Steven Wood, chief economist at Insight Economics. Stock markets will be closed and bond markets will close early for Good Friday. An improving job market could boost President Barack Obama's chances of winning a second term. This year's election is expected to hinge on the state of the economy. Former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney, the likely Republican challenger, this week blamed the president's policies for slow growth and high unemployment. The Obama campaign has said that Romney would reinstate policies that led to the recession — lower taxes for the wealthy and less regulation for business. For many, what matters most is the unemployment rate. It was 7.8 percent when Obama entered office in January 2009 and peaked at 10 percent nine months later. Since August, it has dropped from 9.1 percent to 8.3 percent, the lowest level in three years. No incumbent since World War II has faced voters with unemployment higher than 7.8 percent. Other data suggest the economic recovery is gaining strength. The number of Americans seeking unemployment benefits fell last week to a four-year low, the government said Thursday. Consumers are more confident. In February, they stepped up spending by the most in seven months. The service sector expanded at a healthy clip in March and increased hiring, according to a private survey released Wednesday by the Institute for Supply Management. A separate ISM survey of manufacturers found that factories also added jobs and boosted production last month. Companies are investing more, boosting factory output. Businesses ordered more machinery, equipment and other capital goods in February.

Slowing down the sprawl

Growth of suburbs falls to historic low

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stung by high gasoline costs, outlying suburbs that sprouted in the heady 2000s are now seeing their growth fizzle to historic lows, halting American city dwellers' decades-long exodus to sprawling homes in distant towns. New census estimates as of July 2011 highlight a shift in population trends following an extended housing bust and renewed spike in oil prices. Two years after the recession technically ended, and despite faint signs of a rebound, Americans again are shunning moves at record levels and staying put in big cities. That is posing longer-term consequences for residential "exurbs" on the edge of metropolitan areas. Construction of gleaming new schools and mega-malls built in anticipation of a continued population boom is cutting back. Spacious McMansions offering the promise of homeownership to middle-class families sit abandoned or half-built. Once an escape from urban problems, suburban regions hit by foreclosures are posting bigger jumps in poverty than cities. The result: The annual rate of growth in American cities and surrounding urban areas has now surpassed that of exurbs for the first time in at least 20 years, spanning the modern era of sprawling suburban development.

time," Shiller said, calling the development of suburbs since 1950 "unusual" and enabled only by the rise of the automobile and the nation's highway system. "With the bursting of the bubble, we may be discovering the pleasures of the city and the advantages of renting, investing our money not in a single house but in a diversified portfolio." The signs of longer-term bust are evident in places such as Kendall County, Ill., an outlying suburb of 116,000 people located about 50 miles southwest of Chicago. The nation's No. 1 fastest-growing county from 2000 to 2010, Kendall was part of an exurban wave that more than doubled Kendall's population and helped lift GOP presidential candidate George W. Bush to victory in 2004, offering Republicans the hope of a new era of conservative voters sprouting on the rural-urban edge. By the late 2000s, however, Kendall County's growth began to wane amid recession and rising gasoline costs. The county, like many other exurbs, eventually turned to Illinois Democrat Barack Obama in the 2008 presidential race for economic answers. By 2011, Kendall County's annual growth had stalled further at 1 percent, dropping its county growth-rate rank to 236th. Things were especially turbulent over the past 10 years for real estate agent George Richter, who has worked in Kendall County for more than two decades. "New home construction couldn't be built fast enough," he said. "A lot of us in the industry were very, very nervous about how fast and large the annual growth rate and property value were. We knew there's no way that something could continue on." Now, he said, there's little new construction. Jeff Wehrli, a longtime Kendall County board member who runs an excavating company, said the signs of the slowdown are most apparent from devalued homes, foreclosures and a general uncertainty among residents. "It's going to take a while," he said, speaking of a local recovery that he acknowledges will never reach the same levels as last decade. "Our economy has got to get back to the point where people can confidently sign off on a 40-year mortgage." About 10.6 million Americans reside in the nation's exurbs, just 5 percent of the number in large metropolitan areas. That number represents annual growth of just 0.4 percent from 2010, smaller than the 0.8 percent growth rate for cities and their surrounding urban areas. It also represents the largest one-year growth drop for exurbs in at least 20 years. By comparison, in 2006 exurban communities grew at an annual rate of 2.1 percent, compared with a population loss of 0.2 percent for inner cities. In all, 99 of the 100 fastest-growing exurbs and outer suburbs saw slower or no growth in 2011 compared with the mid-decade housing peak — the exception being Spotsylvania County, Va., located on the outskirts of the Washington, D.C., metropolitan area, which has boomed even in the downturn. Nearly three-fourths of the top 100 outer suburban areas also saw slower growth compared with 2010, hurt by $3-a-gallon gasoline last year that has since climbed $1 higher. Other areas showing big slowdowns are Pinal County outside Phoenix; Barrow, Paulding and Pike counties near Atlanta; Union and York counties outside Charlotte, N.C.; and Sandoval County near Albuquerque, N.M. "The sting of this experience may very well put the damper on the long-held view among young families and new immigrants that building a home in the outer suburbs is a quick way to achieve the American dream," said William H. Frey, a Brookings Institution demographer who analyzed the census data. Over the past decade, the number of poor people living in the suburbs of major metro areas grew 53 percent, compared with 23 percent in cities. Suburbs were also home to roughly one-third of the nation's poor population, out-ranking cities and rural areas. The latest census data come amid an overall U.S. growth rate in 2011 of 0.9 percent, the lowest since the mid-1940s, due to fewer births and less immigration following the recent recession. Fewer people are also moving around within the nation's borders — just 11.6 percent of the nation's population moved to a new home, the lowest since the government began tracking such information in 1948. That means fewer Americans are migrating to residential hot spots in the suburbs or Sun Belt metro areas such as Las Vegas, Phoenix and Atlanta, upending several of the population trends of the 2000s. Metro areas showing renewed growth or slower losses last year included Los Angeles, Miami, Seattle and Detroit, where steep population drops in the downturn have largely bottomed out. Other findings: —Rural counties just beyond the edge of metropolitan areas saw growth drop sharply last year, hurt by the slowing of outward sprawl. From 2010-2011, these counties increased by 30,000 people on average, compared with annual growth of 174,000 in the 2000-2010 period, according to Kenneth Johnson, sociology professor at the University of New Hampshire. As a whole, nonmetropolitan areas last year grew 0.1 percent, compared with 0.9 percent for large metro areas and 0.6 percent for small metropolitan areas. —Charlton, Ga., led the nation last year as the fastest-growing county, followed by St. Bernard Parish, La., both increasing more than 10 percent. That is in contrast to the 2010 census, when St. Bernard Parish ranked last in percentage growth, due primarily to the effects of Hurricane Katrina.

Women ending flirtation with GOP ‘boy band’

WASHINGTON — Mitt Romney “unzipped” is the stuff of cartoonists’ dreams.

The image suggested came from none other than his wife, Ann, when a Baltimore radio interviewer asked whether it’s true that her husband is stiff. Yes, do go ahead and cover the children’s eyes.

“Well, you know, I guess we better unzip him and let the real Mitt Romney out because he is not!” laughed the Mrs.

But, really, should we be talking like this? About unzipping the stiff and letting the “real Mitt” out? Goodness gracious, as Romney would say. What’s next, hot cocoa before noon?

Ann Romney’s comments coincided with the punditocracy’s swoon over her husband’s lack of popularity among the once-fairer sex. (Women have cojones now, you may have heard, while men are ransacking Viagra warehouses. Dots, anyone?) Recent polls show single women under 50 scrambling back into the warm embrace of Barack Obama after a brief flirtation with the Republican boy band — Mitt, Rick, Ron and Newt.

Was it something they said about birth control?

This seems to be the conventional wisdom. Once contraception became a topic of debate, women amscrayed in the other direction.

It isn’t as though women haven’t always found the Democratic Party more hospitable, but the brouhaha over whether “Obamacare” should force religious groups to fund or endorse insurance coverage for contraception seems to have reminded women of just how fragile reproductive autonomy is.

It didn’t help that at the same time, some states moved to force ultrasounds on women seeking abortion; Rush Limbaugh called a young woman a “slut” when she appeared on Capitol Hill to make a case for contraceptive coverage; the GOP looks and acts like a fraternity of cranky old white men.

But what really gives with the old gender gap? Why are women running away from Republicans if, as Ann Romney insists, they’re really interested in the economy and jobs, not abortions and “free” birth control?

In 12 battleground states where pollsters recently took to clipboards, more than 60 percent of women under 50 prefer Obama over Mitt Romney. Just a few weeks ago, fewer than half of this group said they’d reelect the president. Which means, of course, that things could shift in another few weeks.

Meanwhile, some analysts say that Romney’s decline in popularity among women has to do with his promise to defund Planned Parenthood, which to female ears apparently is tantamount to saying, “Women? They’re so cute when they’re pregnant.”

Defunding Planned Parenthood is of course a staple of the Republican diet because some portion of public funds is in the same airspace as women seeking abortions.

A guy can’t get nominated by the GOP unless he confesses his disapproval of Planned Parenthood, a thorough exploration of which will have to await a better mood. I’m swinging at the moment.

It nevertheless bears mentioning at this point that Romney has no objection to contraception, as he said during one of the Republican debates. Moreover, the shift in women’s attitudes did not, in fact, coincide with the birth-control debate.

Counterintuitively, women indicated that they weren’t really that concerned about the birth-control issue and did, by a majority, disapprove of what the government was doing in principle.

The public opinion research firm QEV Analytics conducted a private poll for the Catholic Association and found that 59 percent of unmarried women think birth control should be handled like any other drug, rather than offered for free. Among married women, the number was 67 percent.

The poll also found that 55 percent of unmarried women questioned the wisdom of the Obama contraceptive mandate.

Keeping an eye on everyone

WASHINGTON — You can find just about anything at the annual homeland security expo: X-ray machines, infrared cameras, a police cruiser with heat-sensing capability, a hovering “gyroplane” — and a GPS device to spy on your spouse.

The salesman for Blackline GPS Corp., maker of “professional-grade covert tracking” equipment, explained that his devices, in the shape of a legal envelope or an electric razor, can be tucked behind seat cushions, under floor mats or into backpacks.

“We’re getting more requests from husbands and wives,” he explained. “I’ve seen guys put it in their wives’ car and cover it with a hat.”

That, in one convenient package, is what has become of the homeland security effort. What began as a well-intentioned campaign to harden targets and protect the nation from terrorists has metastasized into a sprawling and diffuse enterprise that has little to do with terrorists and a lot to do with government and employers spying on the citizenry — and citizens spying on each other.

The GovSec expo this week at Washington’s convention center reflects the shift. Billed as “the premier government security event,” it began after the 9/11 attacks, its organizers told me, with vendors hawking security barriers, razor wire and the like. Now the 2,500 attendees can visit the booth of a vendor, ECM Universe, which specializes in monitoring Twitter.

Its “social media surveillance” package helps universities monitor online activity for evidence of bullying, among other things, ECM’s Scott Raimist told me Tuesday. Two weeks ago, the company helped authorities in Fort Lupton, Colo., identify a man who was tweeting such menacing things as “kill people” and “burn (ex-pletive) school.” Said Raimist: “He fit the profile of a pyromaniac.”

So is the man behind bars? Well, no, Raimist admitted. “He’s outside their jurisdiction. He’s still tweeting.” In fact, the man hasn’t been accused of a crime — but that didn’t matter: His full name was projected on a display screen at the GovSec expo as an example of how technology can catch bad guys.

Federal homeland security spending tripled in the years after Sept. 11, and recent cuts have been modest compared with reductions to other parts of the budget. States and private industry, too, have spent billions of dollars. But that money is going further and further afield.

Government agencies and corporations are, for example, buying “Pocket Hound” cell-phone detectors, which indicate who is carrying a mobile phone (among the suggested uses: schools and airports). A competitor, Cellbusters, can locate where a cellphone is inside a building or whether someone in your conference room is violating a company’s no-cellphone policy.

Catch many terrorists with this technology? “Not so much,” Cellbusters’ Derek Forde admitted.

Neither is Fulcrum Biometrics likely to apprehend al-Qaeda operatives with its ID system using fingerprint, face, iris, palm and voice identification. Recommended uses include voter registration and “civil ID,” said Fulcrum’s Kathleen Erickson. Also, gym memberships: “You can use it in guest management, like a loyalty program.”

One product enables employers to require construction workers and others at remote sites to clock in with their fingerprints.

“Can I scan you?” Erickson asked me. She waved a scanner at my convention badge, and with a “boing” sound my registration information was transferred to her.

There are, of course, legitimate uses for all such gizmos, as there are for gun vaults, portable bunkers and military gear, so Big Brother’s display space at the expo is expanding.

Prescription, OTC drug legislation, right

BOWLING GREEN DAILY NEWS — Kentuckians should be pleased to learn that a bill to curb prescription drug abuse in our state will likely become law, but should be disappointed to see a bill that would help the battle on methamphetamine in our state become watered down, limiting its effectiveness.

The prescription drug bill is a move in the right direction as our state continues to see needless overdoses and deaths in relation to these drugs.

The legislation is intended to control the problem of “pill mills” — pain clinics run by unscrupulous owners who prey on people with pain pill addictions. It is also meant to curb “doctor shopping” by addicts or drug dealers who get prescriptions from more than one doctor and then get them filled at multiple pharmacies.

Under the bill, police and prosecutors could use the Kentucky All Schedule Prescription Electronic Reporting program to monitor doctors who overprescribe painkillers. It would be monitored by the attorney general’s office. ...

The legislation also requires pharmacists to record prescription information and allows that information to be shared with state and federal law enforcement authorities, physicians and pharmacists. ...

While it appears this will become law, it is more than disheartening that some Legislators caved in to an out-of-state group that spent big bucks to weaken a meth bill proven effective elsewhere.

The current proposal would limit any one person’s purchases to no more than 7.2 grams in a month or 24 grams in a year. That’s the equivalent of two boxes a month or 10 boxes a year. People who need more than that would have to get a prescription.

Early in the session, a bill was introduced that we supported that would have required a prescription for medicines containing pseudoephedrine ... That bill was withdrawn and the one that appears ready for passage simply doesn’t go far enough.

Hopefully, next year more legislators will stand up to this group and make it clear that we are going to look after Kentuckians. ...

Legislative update

Budget approved, more work to do before session ends

FRANKFORT — The 2012 Legislation Session is down to the final days, and the good news from this week is for the first time in three sessions we will leave Frankfort with a budget agreement.

Leadership from both the House and Senate worked into the night Wednesday before finally agreeing on a biennial budget in the early hours on Thursday morning.

Among some of the items in the agreement is funding to renovate Rupp Arena, funds for the University of Louisville Hospital and a reduction in the amount of the Commonwealth’s bonded debt.

It also expands a proposal to create scholarships for students living in coal producing counties to include coal counties in west Kentucky.

Originally the plan was aimed at helping students in 14 counties in eastern Kentucky cover the cost to attend colleges and universities within the area.

The new proposal expands the program to 38 coal producing counties in the western and eastern coalfields.

While some things were left in, other items were taken out including $7.5 million proposed by the Governor to expand Kentucky’s preschool program. It also includes cuts of 8.4 percent in funding for many state agencies and programs.

It is our hope that as the economy improves, and we take real steps to reduce our debt that money will become available to fund needed programs in the Commonwealth.

The budget wasn’t the only focus this week. The House and Senate passed bills dealing with combating the abuse of drugs in Kentucky.

Senate Bill 3 was approved, which attempts to solve the methamphetamine problem gripping many rural parts of the state.

This bill places monthly and yearly limits on the amount of pseudoephedrine, which is a major ingredient of meth that someone can purchase.

If an individual exceeds that amount they could only purchase pseudoephedrine with a prescription.

While I understand that meth is a problem in some parts of the Commonwealth, my concern is that Senate Bill 3 takes away more of our individual freedoms and moves us closer to making pseudoephedrine a prescription-only medication.

Some of us are also concerned that this bill will force meth makers to move to border counties where nearby states’ regulations to purchase meth aren’t as stringent as Kentucky.

In addition Senate Bill 3 doesn’t address the problem with so-called ‘smurfing,’ which is when makers pay others to travel from store to store buying pseudoephedrine to skirt the law we passed in 2005.

As the final hours tick away for this session, we expect to give final approval on numerous bills. I will update you on what passed and what didn’t in next week’s column.

As always, I welcome your comments and concerns for the upcoming session. I can be reached through the toll-free message line in Frankfort at 1-800-372-7181. A taped message containing information on legislative committee meeting schedules is available by calling 1-800-633-9650, and information on the status of each bill is available by calling 1-866-840-2835.

If you have Internet access, I can be reached at donna.mayfield@lrc.ky.gov, or you may keep track of legislation through the Kentucky Legislature Home Page at www.lrc.ky.gov.

‘Honky Tonk Girl’ keeps you humming

By Teri Schlichenmeyer

It was a wonderful trip — and you never went anywhere.

All you had to do was hear that song and you saw yourself dancing with your sweetheart. Five opening notes and you were in your first new car, ready to cruise Main Street. Ten seconds, and lyrics flooded your mind along with remembrances of what you were doing when you first heard that song.

Funny how something that enters your ears can send your heart to another place.

For author and songstress Loretta Lynn, those lyrics are a journal of her life as well as a means for memory. In her new book “Honky Tonk Girl: My Life in Lyrics,” she explains.

The very first lyric Loretta Lynn ever put to paper happened on a day when she went fishing with her husband, Doo. She says she doesn’t remember why she started writing, but she was shocked as the words poured out.

“Honky Tonk Girl: My Life in Lyrics” by Loretta Lynn, with a preface by Elvis Costello ©2012, Knopf, $29.95 / $32.00 Canada, 240 pages

For 50 years, Lynn has put her heart and her thoughts into her lyrics. Whatever she feels, she writes. What she sees is what she sings — beauty, happiness, sadness, and everything in between.

Lynn wrote songs about patriotism (when Doo asked her to do so) and Christmas (for a holiday album). She wrote “Honky Tonk Girl” because she saw heartbreak in a fragile barfly. She wrote songs in response to what others were doing, and in response to her own previous hit songs.

In her early days, when she was just starting out in the biz, Lynn’s career was only a dream. Just after she recorded “Honky Tonk Girl,” she met Doyle Wilburn, who nurtured her and her music, and became a mentor and lyrics collaborator. Over the years, there were other co-writers for Lynn’s hits, as well as performers she sang with and by which she’s still awed.

Lynn writes about how stage-struck she was by Ernest Tubb, and how Patsy Cline’s death affected her. She explains how her family (especially her sisters) have influenced her shows, and how her younger sibling, Crystal Gayle, got her start. And with great glee, Lynn writes about getting her rock-star on, winning Grammy Awards with a most unlikely singing partner.

Reading “Honky Tonk Girl” is a little like stepping into a place that’s warm, welcoming, and gracious. Maybe that’s because author Loretta Lynn presents all those things in what she’s written here, words and lyrics both.

There’s a lot to like about this book, starting with the fact that you’ll be humming old favorites as you read. Long-time fans will love seeing the personal photos that Lynn shares in this book, while new fans will appreciate reading a story they might not know. I was also surprised to be reminded (visually and audibly, once I went web-surfing for music) that there was a time when major hits were minor in length.

Without a doubt, this book is a treasure-trove for fans of all ages. If you grew up with (or always loved) that Coal Miner’s daughter, then “Honky Tonk Girl” is an excellent trip down Memory Lane.

Winter refused to release its grip on Central Kentucky over the weekend as a surprisingly intense spring snowstorm combined with high winds to create dangerous driving conditions late Saturday and early Sunday. The late-season storm, part of a massive belt of snow that buried parts of Eastern Kentucky with as much as 30 inches of snow, spared Clark County such a fate, but still managed to dump about 6 inches of heavy, wet snow locally.

Plans are being finalized for the Clark County Hospital’s participation in National Hospital Week May 11-16. According to Denise Ockerman, coordinator of events at the hospital, special events have been scheduled May 11-15 and the week’s activities will be highlighted with a Health Fair at College Park on Saturday. The Health Fair will include a Fun-Run-Walk at 8:30 a.m.

Waitress can keep $12,000 left as tip

MOORHEAD, Minn. (AP) — Authorities have decided to return a $12,000 tip to a Minnesota waitress that police believed was drug money.

Stacy Knutson of Moorhead said a customer told her she could keep a takeout container she left behind at the Fryn’ Pan restaurant. The box turned out to contain $12,000 in bills in various denominations.

Police initially told her she could keep the money if no one claimed it, but later said it was part of a drug investigation.

On Thursday, after the case drew national attention, Assistant Clay County Attorney Michelle Lawson told reporters the money could not be tied to a criminal investigation, and that Knutson would get a check.

Knutson said she believed the money was an anonymous gift from someone who knew her family had severe financial difficulties.

Holder backs high court in letter urged by judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a letter written at the request of a federal appellate judge, Attorney General Eric Holder on Thursday offered assurances that the Obama administration respects the authority of the courts.

Appeals Court Judge Jerry Smith in Texas requested the letter after President Barack Obama said this week that it would be “unprecedented” for the Supreme Court to overturn a major law passed by Congress like the health care overhaul whose constitutionality it is now considering.

On Tuesday, saying he was seeking reassurances that the Justice Department recognizes judicial authority, Smith said he wanted a letter of at least three pages that makes specific references to the president’s statements.

“The longstanding, historical position of the United States regarding judicial review of the constitutionality of federal legislation has not changed,” Holder wrote.

“The department has not in this litigation, nor in any other litigation of which I am aware, ever asked this or any other court to reconsider or limit long-established precedent concerning judicial review,” Holder added.

On Tuesday, after his remarks stirred controversy, the president himself had elaborated, saying that the court “is the final say on our Constitution.”

In his letter Thursday, the attorney general said “the president’s remarks were fully consistent with the principles” Holder outlined in the letter.

The attorney general noted the health care case now before the Supreme Court, saying the court “has often acknowledge the appropriateness of reliance on the political branches’ policy choices and judgments.”

“These principles of deference,” Holder wrote, “are fully applicable when Congress legislates in the commercial sphere,” such as in the overhaul of the health care system now before the justices.

Smith raised the issue of Obama’s remarks during oral arguments over a provision in the new health care law that restricts physician-owned hospitals from expanding or building new facilities.

Holder wrote that where someone bringing a case invokes the jurisdiction of the court and has a valid challenge, “there is no dispute that courts properly review the constitutionality of acts of Congress.”

Supreme Court upholds strip searches

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled Monday that jailers may subject people arrested for minor offenses to invasive strip searches, siding with security needs over privacy rights.

By a 5-4 vote, the court ruled against a New Jersey man who complained that strip searches in two county jails violated his civil rights.

Justice Anthony Kennedy said in his majority opinion for the court’s conservative justices that when people are going to be put into the general jail population, “courts must defer to the judgment of correctional officials unless the record contains substantial evidence showing their policies are an unnecessary or unjustified response to problems of jail security.”

In a dissenting opinion joined by the court’s liberals, Justice Stephen Breyer said strip searches improperly “subject those arrested for minor offenses to serious invasions of their personal privacy.”

Breyer said jailers ought to have a reasonable suspicion someone may be hiding something before conducting a strip search.

Albert Florence was forced to undress and submit to strip searches following his arrest on a warrant for an unpaid fine, though the fine actually had been paid. Even if the warrant had been valid, failure to pay a fine is not a crime in New Jersey.

But Kennedy focused on the fact that Florence was held with other inmates in the general population. In concurring opinions, Chief Justice John Roberts and Justice Samuel Alito said the decision left open the possibility of an exception to the rule and might not apply to someone held apart from other inmates.

The first strip search of Florence took place in the Burlington County Jail in southern New Jersey. Six days later, Florence had not received a hearing and remained in custody. Transferred to another county jail in Newark, he was strip-searched again.

The next day, a judge dismissed all charges. Florence’s lawsuit soon followed.

He may still pursue other claims, including that he never should have been arrested.

Florence’s problems arose in March 2005, as he was heading to dinner at his mother-in-law’s house with his pregnant wife and 4-year-old child. His wife, April, was driving when a state trooper stopped the family SUV on a New Jersey highway.

Florence identified himself as the vehicle’s owner and the trooper, checking records, found an outstanding warrant for an unpaid fine.

Florence, who is African-American, had been stopped several times before, and he carried a letter to the effect that the fine, for fleeing a traffic stop several years earlier, had been paid.

His protest was in vain, and the trooper handcuffed him and hauled him off to jail.

At the time, the state police were operating under a court order, spawned by allegations of past racial discrimination.

US Coast Guard sinks tsunami ghost ship

OVER THE GULF OF ALASKA (AP) — A U.S. Coast Guard cutter poured cannon fire into a Japanese ghost ship that had been drifting since the last year's tsunami, sinking the vessel in the Gulf of Alaska and eliminating the hazard it posed to shipping and the coastline. The cutter's guns tore holes in the 164-foot Ryou-Un Maru on Thursday, ending its long, lonely journey across the Pacific that began when the deadly tsunami set it floating more than a year ago. The crew pummeled the ghost ship with high explosive ammunition, and the derelict Ryou-Un Maru soon burst into flames, and began taking on water, officials said. A huge column of smoke could be seen over the gulf as a Coast Guard C-130 cargo plane, sent to observe the sinking, dropped a buoy to monitor for any possible pollution. The Coast Guard warned mariners to stay away, and aviation authorities did the same for pilots. In about four hours, the ship vanished into the water, said Chief Petty Officer Kip Wadlow in Juneau. It sank into waters more than 6,000 feet deep, about 180 miles west of the southeast Alaska coast, the Coast Guard said. Officials decided to sink the ship rather than risk the chance of it running aground or endangering other vessels in the busy shipping lanes between North America and Asia. The ship had no lights or communications system, and its tank was able to carry more than 2,000 gallons of diesel fuel.

WASHINGTON

Panetta's commute costly to taxpayers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Leon Panetta has commuted on military aircraft to his home in northern California more than two dozen times since he took over the Pentagon in July, paying about $630 per trip for a roundtrip flight that costs the Pentagon about $32,000. The totals detailed by defense officials lay out his reimbursements for the first time, showing he paid the Treasury about $17,000 for the 27 personal trips. Based on fuel and other operating expenses for his Air Force plane, those same trips cost the government as much as $860,000. As Pentagon chief, Panetta is required to travel on military planes because they have the secure communications equipment he needs to stay in contact with the president and other top civilian and military leaders. His bill for the travel is calculated according to reimbursement formulas dictated by longstanding federal policies using what a full-fare coach trip would cost. And the Pentagon says it costs about $3,200 per flight hour to operate the small plane he usually uses for the 10-hour round trip. When he took the job, Panetta made it clear that he would continue to return home to his family on the weekends as he had done as CIA director and as a member of Congress from 1977-1993. Panetta comes to the defense job at a particularly difficult financial time for the department. If Congress can't reach an agreement on savings or additional revenues elsewhere in the federal budget by next January, officials could be forced to cut nearly $1 trillion in defense spending over the next 10 years.

HEIRLOOM PORTRAITS DONATED TO CLARK COUNTY PUBLIC LIBRARY WILL ENSURE PRESERVATION OF PAST FOR GENERATIONS TO COME

By Rachel Parsons
The Winchester Sun

The Clark County Public Library is a lot more than books.

In the nearly 11 years since Andy Gary has been working in the reference department, the library also has become a place for local historical research, genealogy and cultural preservation.

"It's a big deal. I get excited about it," Gary said.

Thanks to a recent donation from Clark County native Lou Ray King, the library has enough photos, documents and records to keep librarians busy for years to come.

King's collection of family heirlooms was almost lost to history. A relative was going to throw them out, but called and asked King's mother, Mattie Lindsay King, if she would be interested in a portrait collection and other memorabilia.

"Her own mother, Mattie Price Hunt, died in 1909, four weeks after mother was born, so mother grew up crazy about family," King said.

In addition to portraits, the collection included snapshots and other pieces of family memorabilia. The elder King loved the portraits so much, she decided to add to the collection by having more portraits made of her immediate family members.

"They were portraits of her favorite relatives," Gary said of the collection.

Recently, King, who now lives in Arizona, decided to let the library have her artifacts because she wanted to share them with the public. After moving into a smaller home, she had nowhere to display the portraits herself, and chose not to distribute them to family members so the collection would stay intact.

It was important to King that the public be able to see the portraits and access the historical documents, which is useful not only to family members, but also people interested in local history.

"As heartbreaking as it was to me to leave them, I knew they would be on display," King said.

Portraits include King, 72, and her brother, Joe Lindsay King, as children, as well as their great-great-grandfather, Asa Carrington Barrow, 1816-1899.

"It's a very well-connected family," Gary said, citing relatives such as well-known Confederate soldier John Hunt Morgan.

King will be on hand to discuss the portraits at a public reception April 15 at the library. The event is free and light refreshments will be served.

All portraits are people from Clark County, or parts of Bourbon and Fayette counties that would eventually become Clark County. Respected local photographers William Ogden and A.J. Earp took several of the photographs, and King recalled having her own portrait taken by Ogden.

"I was essentially the last one in my family to know about the portraits. I gradually knew about them because they were in our house," King said.

In addition to the portraits, which King is excited to see on display, Gary is looking forward to processing the snapshots in the collection, and seeing how they might benefit historians. For example, a picture of family member John Daniel Duvall riding a McCormick bluegrass seed stripper, circa 1905, is useful not only to people researching the family, but also people interested in the history of the bluegrass region. McCormick seed strippers were developed at Winchester's McCormick Machine

This portrait of James Harvey Hunt and Bettie Barrow Hunt, ancestors of former Winchester resident Lou King, is currently on display at the Clark County Public Library. King donated a portrait collection and a collection of other snapshots and family memorabilia to the library's reference department.

Shop and used by seed companies shipping bluegrass seed all over the world.

"I'm protecting these people's culture," Gary said.

The reference librarians see themselves as stewards, protecting pieces of cultural history so future generations can easily access it. The King collection includes diplomas, military papers and family letters.

Other snapshots include the 1922 Winchester High School basketball team, and King's father, Oscar Ray King, showing a mule at the county fair.

In the future, Gary said the library staff hopes to revise its mission statement to reflect the cultural work done by the reference librarian. He compares it to the work of anthropologists, and is flattered that King trusted the library to preserve such important documents.

"The magnanimity of her, and her putting this here, she's right in line with what our mission is," Gary said.

People from all over the country make use of the library's local history resources, Gary said.

"I guess what's important for me, and what libraries across the country are asking themselves, is what do we do that's of value?" Gary said.

He also complimented the Bluegrass Heritage Museum on the work they are doing to promote local history, and help with genealogical research.

In addition to providing historical information, reference librarians routinely assist patrons with their research, and lead research classes.

"It's a really, really big function of this library," Gary said.

Bruce Willis offering ski resort

KETCHUM, Idaho (AP) — Bruce Willis says he's willing to give away his central Idaho ski resort to a nonprofit.

The action star has already put his lavish home in nearby Hailey, Idaho, on the market — it's listed at $15 million — along with his local bar and nightclub, The Mint — listed at about $4 million.

Now the Idaho Mountain Express reports Willis may be severing another real estate tie to Idaho.

The actor told Camas County leaders he is willing to give the Soldier Mountain ski area in Fairfield to the right nonprofit.

Willis, best known for the "Die Hard" series and "Sixth Sense," has owned the ski area since the late 1990s. It boasts 1,150 acres of in-bounds terrain, and its three lifts give access to a vertical rise of 1,425 feet.

Soldier Mountain is popular with families, serving as a laid-back alternative to the swanky Sun Valley ski resort about 65 miles away.

Willis' Soldier Mountain Development owns and operates the ski hill on public land under a U.S. Forest Service special-use permit.

At least one nonprofit has expressed interest in his offer.

John Palan, with the local Soldier Mountain Recreation Association, says his group is hoping to get enough help from donors to take over the ski area's operations.

Rivals meet again in gridiron alumni game

By Keith Taylor
The Winchester Sun

Chris Shearer can't wait to play football again.

Eight years removed from his collegiate playing days at Campbellsville University, he's returning to the field, this time with a Clark County alumni team. Shearer, 30, and a 1999 graduate of George Rogers Clark High School, will compete with former players of all age groups at Clark in an alumni game against Montgomery County Saturday in Mount Sterling. The game is slated for a 6 p.m. kickoff and will feature high school rules with four, 12-minute quarters.

"It's full gear and full contact, with kicking gear and every thing," Shearer said. "There are some rules in place to help cut down on injuries. We're not allowed to blitz and cut block, so that's going to help us out a lot on saving our knees."

The team, currently comprised of at least 20 regular players, has been preparing for the contest for the past two months at the George Rogers

Clark High School track green space.

"We've got about 25 to 30 players signed up who have paid to play," Shearer said. "We have room for more people to play (on Saturday)."

The list of players on the roster includes men ages 19-45. Some of the players on the roster include former Clark players David Carr, Donnie Johnson, Tony Lanning, Travis Ervin and Darius Skinner.

Opening Day: Reds 4, Marlins 0

Reds sink Marlins

CINCINNATI (AP) — Joey Votto grabbed the cap off his head and tossed it into the joyous crowd behind the Reds' dugout as a way of saying thanks on opening day. Then he pulled off his batting gloves and flung those into the stands, too.

Johnny Cueto? He wasn't giving anything away. Not to the Marlins, anyway.

Jay Bruce homered and drove in a pair of runs, and Cueto dominated in his first opening-day start on Thursday, leading the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-0 victory over the Miami Marlins before one of the biggest crowds ever at Great American Ball Park.

Cueto (1-0) anchored the Reds' first opening-day shutout since 1980, when Frank Pastore beat Atlanta's Phil Niekro 9-0. The right-hander allowed only three hits over seven innings, one of them an infield single.

The 26-year-old didn't sweat his starring role on the city's

Westwood holds slim lead

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — With his words and then his play, Lee Westwood shot down the notion Thursday that this Masters was a two-horse race.

On a busy opening day at Augusta National that featured mud, a little rain and a snowman on the final hole for Henrik Stenson, Westwood provided a steady hand Thursday with seven birdies for a 5-under 67 that gave him a one-shot lead.

It was the first time Westwood has led after the opening round of a major, though that was little comfort. Louis Oosthuizen made four birdies over the last five holes for a 68, while Peter Hanson of Sweden made six birdies for his 68. Bubba Watson, blasting tee shots with his pink driver, was among six players at 69.

Westwood had said it would be naive for anyone to think this major was only about Tiger Woods and Rory McIlroy.

Those two horses were happy to still be in the running.

Woods took two penalty shots, hit three tee shots that rattled the pines and was thrilled to make bogey on his last hole for a 72, the first time since 2008 that he failed to break par in the opening round of the Masters.

"I had some of the worst golf swings I've ever hit today," Woods said.

McIlroy opened with a double bogey, though his big moment was on the 10th hole. A year ago, that's where his Sunday collapse began with a hooked tee shot into the cabins for a triple bogey. This time, he pushed a 3-wood into the trees on the other side and managed a par.

"That was a bit of an improvement from the last time I played it," McIlroy said.

Better yet was a birdie-birdie finish, including a 15-foot putt from the fringe on the 18th that gave him a 71, making him one of 28 players who broke par and were within four shots of the lead.

"It was huge," McIlroy said. "I didn't feel like I had my best out there. To finish under par for the day, I'm very pleased."

Along with Woods smiling after a 72, three-time Masters champion Phil Mickelson was delighted with a 74. He sprayed tee shots all over the course, including one so far left on the 10th into bushes he didn't know existed that he never found his ball. Mickelson made a triple bogey there, then spent the rest of the back nine scrambling for his life.

He recounted all the bad shots, the missed opportunities, the triple bogey, and decided the glass was half full, almost spilling over.

"This is good news," Mickelson said. "Because if I can get hot tomorrow, I'm playing good enough to shoot 6 or Jackie McCloud of Winchester was one of the first to welcome Kentucky coach John Calipari back to the Bluegrass Tuesday afternoon after the Wildcats returned from New Orleans, where they won their eighth national championship Monday night. McCloud is a driver for Bluegrass Tours in Lexington and transported Kentucky President Eli Capilouto, Kentucky Athletics Director Mitch Barnhart and others from Bluegrass Airport to Rupp Arena for the team celebration. McCloud was in the motorcade behind Calipari and the Wildcats in the team's return to Rupp Arena.

"The most fun part is playing with people you never got the chance to play with," he said. "For me personally, it's been fun to hang out with Tony Lanning, who was on the 1991 team that won the state championship. It's been fun being with all the people you didn't get the opportunity to play with before."

The game is sponsored by Gridiron Alumni, based in California, founded by Chris Hall. The games are rivalry-based throughout the nation and offer former players an opportunity to play football again. "I am excited about the ability to give these former players the ability to play one more time," Hall said on the organization's website. "We want to make every event special. I don't want to be the biggest. I want to be the best."

Shearer said the team is in "pretty decent shape," but getting there was a challenge in the beginning.

"That was the toughest part for most of us, getting into shape, going to workouts and different things like that," he said. "It's been fun. We hold each other accountable when we practice, we'll see how good the conditioning works out on Saturday, though."

As for the rivalry between the two schools, Shearer said it hasn't changed.

"We're playing against people we never had the opportunity to play against," Shearer said. "There's been some friendly and not-so-friendly banter back and forth on Facebook, but it's a rivalry just like it's always been. There will probably be some heated discussions and exchanges during the game, but at the end we'll all come together and appreciate it for what it is."

Shearer, an offensive lineman at Clark and Campbellsville, insists he can still compete, although his wife thinks he was "an idiot long before I told her I was going to play in the game." "I'm not that old," he said with a laugh. "That's what I keep telling myself anyway."

Former Clark players who haven't signed up, can be part of the contest, but will have to pay a $100 late sign-up fee. The cost for tickets is $10 per person. Those with a student ID can attend for $5 and children under 5 are free. Players in uniform also receive a $5 admission and a portion of the proceeds will benefit the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

7 under, and I'll be right in it for the weekend. Fortunately, I didn't shoot myself out of it." Luke Donald, the No. 1 player in the world, had a few nervous moments, and that was after he signed for a 75. When his card was sent to the scoring room to be entered into the computer, an official accidentally punched in a birdie 3 for the fifth hole, even though Donald three-putted for a 5. The leaderboard showed him with a 73. It took about two hours to clear up the confusion. "This place, if you are a little bit off, it can eat you up," Donald said. Donald and Westwood are the only two players to be No. 1 without ever having won a major.

Bidding Quiz

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has gone:
West North East South
1♦ 1♠ Pass ?
What would you bid with each of the following five hands?
1. ♠A84 ♥87 ♦653 ♣KQ974
2. ♠KJ7 ♥AJ952 ♦64 ♣K83
3. ♠95 ♥Q83 ♦A107 ♣KJ752
4. ♠K2 ♥KJ4 ♦KQ10 ♣A10983
5. ♠J ♥AQ842 ♦985 ♣J642

1. Two spades. Before discussing what to do, it might be best to define partner's one-spade bid. Most overcalls on the one-level are based on eight to 12 high-card points and a good suit, although partner could have as many as 16 points in high cards. The one-spade overcall should therefore tentatively be regarded as merely a competitive bid and not the equivalent of an opening bid.

Though it is not likely that the combined hands contain the where-withal necessary for game, you should nevertheless raise partner's spades, partly to allow for the possibility that he has a strong hand, and partly for tactical reasons. A bid of two clubs would not be wise because it is not forcing and would deny spade support and at the same time would make it easier for West to bid again at a low level.

2. Three spades. This time game prospects are much brighter, and your three-spade bid invites partner to continue on to four spades unless his overcall is in the minimum range.

3. One notrump. Game is unlikely, but even so, it's much better to bid one notrump than to pass. This will give partner another chance to bid if he happens to have a strong hand. It would be wrong to bid two clubs, which would indicate a better club suit and would also understate the all-around value of your hand.

4. Three notrump. It's hard to imagine a hand partner can have where you won't have a good play for nine tricks. A jump to two notrump (invitational) would be an egregious underbid.

Partner might dislike notrump and retreat to four spades, but your values are fully adequate for that contract as well.

5. Pass. You shouldn't go looking for trouble by bidding two hearts. Partner's suit should be at least as good as yours, and if he lacked support for hearts and rebid his spades, you'd be worse off than you were before. This is the type of hand that suggests a possible misfit, and experience teaches that the sooner you "let go" in misfit hands, the better off you will be.

Tomorrow: The maximum chance.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, April 6, 2012:

The Full Moon marks your year. You often will juggle your intellect and your feelings. You could go back and forth when deciding what you should do as opposed to what you want to do. You will choose which voice works for you. If you are single, your charisma attracts people like a magnet. Maintaining a relationship will take a lot of understanding and compassion on both your parts. If you are attached, you will be a little inconsistent in your relationship, as your mind floats to other issues. Learn to respect the differences between you rather than fight about them. LIBRA admires you and wants to be with you.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★★ You might be busy juggling two different interests. Avoid someone who reads you cold, which could cause a problem at this moment. Think in terms of gains. You might be questioning whether you are giving enough or giving too much. Tonight: Worry less.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ Pace yourself, and understand that you easily could be drained. News from a distance could be problematic. You might feel like you are being stretched too thin. Walk away from the problem for a little while. Answers will come up soon enough. Tonight: Whatever makes you feel good.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ Your creativity seems to handle what your mind cannot. Pressure builds and creates a somewhat touchy situation. Lo and behold, your intuitive reaction will provide a solution. Tonight: Lead the Friday-night celebrations. CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ Basics do count. You might want to rethink a decision or move a situation in a different direction. You could be feeling high-strung and pressured. Squeeze in plenty of physical activity. Walk a little more. Tonight: Find a stress-buster. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★★ You say what you feel, but reactions come in from left field. You could feel pressured by an associate or someone you deal with every day. Remember, it is a judgment you are making about the situation that creates stress. Tonight: Hang out with friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ You can play around with your finances all you want, but realize that you still will need to stop excessive spending. A risk will not pay off. A close loved one has a different outlook on the situation. Tonight: Treat a friend to dinner. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ Your hands are full, as many seem to need your help or attention. Trying not to look rushed, even when you are, takes talent. Recognize that a friend or associate could be intentionally slowing you down. Tonight: Where the gang is.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ You might want to deal with a situation directly. The problem is that it could backfire if you are not careful. Others are unusually touchy and could misinterpret your words. Stay centered. Play the waiting game. Tonight: Vanish. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ A meeting or discussion might force you to do some searching in your memory to see if you have missed someone's warnings. Know that everything will pass. Do not forget a child or loved one. Tonight: Relish the change of pace.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★★ You feel today's Full Moon more than others. How you handle a personal matter might change substantially after you witness what goes on with a key person. You might have overlooked a certain quality of this person. Tonight: All eyes turn to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ If you do not overreact to a comment and take it personally, you might enjoy all the intense communication happening around you. You might need to sort through messages and make a judgment call. Tonight: Flow into the weekend.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ You might wish you were the only one involved in dealing with a money matter. Quite clearly, you discover that two people with different ideas might have difficulty becoming one voice, especially today. If you can postpone this matter, do. Tonight: Make it OK to let go and enjoy.

Rules of Engagement
8:31 p.m. on WKYT, WLKY
For a married guy, Jeff (Patrick Warburton) can be pretty clueless about women and relationships sometimes. Case in point: Finding out that Audrey (Megyn Price) uses sex to get what she wants from him comes as a total shock. Russell and Timmy (David Spade, Adhir Kalyan) make a commercial for their soup spoon in the new episode "After the Lovin'." Oliver Hudson also stars. (HDTV)
